

I am a homeschooling mother of five. In 2012 I decided to place my youngest daughter Mercy into preschool as instructing the older ones became more of a challenge to me. I have never been so grateful for such a decision. Placing Mercy in pre-school provided her with a foundation of basic skills that allowed her to flourish academically in her elementary years. I am now homeschooling Mercy. Within five months of working with her at home she has already accelerated a grade level. She has been the easiest one by far to teach to read. I attribute the solid education she received at Pass Christian Pre-School to that fact. I wish I had done this with all my kids and I would highly recommend any parent considering a pre-school education for their child to enroll their child in Pass Christian School. It is a loving family environment where kids are allowed to be kids and at the same time given solid academic instruction. Whether you are planning on keeping your kids in a brick and mortar school or bringing them home to educate them I highly recommend a pre-school education. Even as a homeschooling mother of five kids it has benefited our home-education tremendously!
